

I want to buy some handicraft products for my relatives in USA but I'm still concerned whether my luggage is the case of excess baggage and it is difficult to clear customs? Please give me the answer.

The Fine- arts department store in the Airport area sell handicrafts of various kinds and types. Each customer is allowed to buy a number of fine arts products which ensure passenger can bring in-flight. These stores are located in the zone out of required formalities such as security control and customs clearance... So, you do not have to worry about excess baggage charge as well as difficulty in customs procedure.
